airport

went the airport to see the new terminal 3, two shots of the inside waiting area then the giant fan in the outside departure hall and two details shot at 4x zoom

I was about to leave, when I found this which is painted in each urinal in the men's toilet!! I guess someone is being witty; also found this scene the linkway between T2 and T3 on top of the MRT station - it is actually quicker to go between the two by this way instead of waiting for the monorail.

(A few observations: the T1/2 and T1/3 monorails have separate public and secure lines, but the T2/T3 service uses one carriage for public and the other for secure, with doors opening on opposite sides; there are two trains going back and forth, so there are two tracks alongside T1 where they can pass each other. T1/2 and T1/3 services, being much shorter, have one train each, but all the service should have approximately the same frequency, I think one service every 10 minutes during the busy hours)

the progressive zooming
