dam3

The dam between Marina East and Marina South is ready, and pedestrians can walk on the bridge atop it though Marina East has no building, parkland or roads on it right now so nobody would want to go there; Marina South is full of construction, with a big park and the casino coming up. Here is a map

I have already shown you photos of the dam itself in two webpages, so this time I will only show what you can see from the dam itself and from the viewing garden next to it; first a shot taken with a kodak with lowest zoom of 35mm then one with olympus at 28mm and nikon at the equivalent of a 15mm lens and shot of the opposite side with many ships on the horizon now some shots using telephoto lenses; a kodak with 10x optical and 3x digital zoom olympus at 18x zoom plus a telephoto extension, making the equivalent of about 1200mm focal length another shot using Nikon fitted with 800mm manual lens - because of difference in frame size between digital and film cameras, the focal length is actually 1.6 times this or about 1200mm also:

which was taken from a whole shot that had to be reduced to 19% to fit the screen page now the top of the wheel, catching also the Millenia hotel behind also reduced, but the unreduced left and right carriages:

three buildings in a reduced photo and slightly reduced Maybank sign ntuc with prudential behind and just the building signs
